Marcos pinta un cuadro vívido en el Evangelio de hoy. Al llegar a Cafarnaúm, Jesús y sus discípulos entran en una casa. En este lugar privado, Jesús pregunta a sus discípulos sobre la discusión que tuvieron mientras viajaban. Nuevamente, los discípulos guardan un silencio inusual y tienen miedo de responder. Han sido descubiertos. Luego, Jesús convoca a los Doce, a quienes Marcos identificó anteriormente en su Evangelio como aquellos elegidos por Jesús para predicar y expulsar demonios. A este grupo selecto de discípulos, Jesús le enseña que aquellos que quieran ser los primeros en el reino de Dios deben ser siervos de todos.

Luego, Jesús llama a un niño y les enseña a los Doce que recibir a un niño en el nombre de Jesús es recibir tanto a Jesús como a Aquel que lo envió. Es fácil que no entendamos el significado de esta acción. En la Palestina del siglo I, los niños carecían de estatus o poder y no poseían derechos legales. En esta acción, Jesús está enseñando a sus discípulos y a nosotros que cuando servimos a los más pequeños entre nosotros, servimos a Jesús mismo. ¿Quiénes son las personas sin poder o estatus en nuestra sociedad a las que Jesús nos llama a servir? ¿Lo hacemos de buena gana? Jesús enseña que el juicio de Dios sobre nosotros se basará únicamente en este criterio

Mark paints a vivid picture in today's Gospel. Having arrived at Capernaum, Jesus and his disciples enter a house. In this private place, Jesus asks his disciples about the argument they had while they were journeying. Again, the disciples are uncharacteristically silent and afraid to answer. They have been found out. Jesus then summons the Twelve, whom Mark identified earlier in his Gospel as those chosen by Jesus to preach and to drive out demons. To this select group of disciples, Jesus teaches that those who would be first in God's kingdom must be servants of all. Jesus then calls forward a child and teaches the Twelve that to receive a child in Jesus' name is to receive both Jesus and the One who sent him. We might easily fail to understand the significance
